Project Overview:

Evans Jones was appointed as Party Wall Surveyors to deal with neighborly matters for the new YMCA site in Cheltenham which is in close proximity to multiple neighbor. We advised the client Speller Metcalfe on the party wall act and advised how access to neighbour gardens could be secured. We then served notices on more than 15 neighbours who were both homeowners and commercial businesses and dealt with disputes, preparation of party wall awards and scaffold licences for 10 separate owners.

Challenges:

The first challenge was to establish ownership of numerous neighbouring properties. This was complicated by absent landlords. The second

The second challenge was to co ordinate the service of notices and negotiations of scaffold and access agreements in time to allow works to progress on programme.

Results:

Despite dealing with disgruntled neighbours we were able to secure access to 8 neighbouring properties to allow the erection of scaffolding with no disruption to the build programme despite the groundworks design changing at least 3 times during the project. With careful management cordial relationships were retained with neighbours with minimal snagging work on completion. "We are very grateful to Evans Jones for effectively dealing with our party wall negotiations and ensuring there was no disruption to our build programme. I highly recommend Ian and his team to anyone looking for party wall advice." - Andy Metcalfe, Speller Metcalfe
